

Fine gear is this stuff from Mainlink

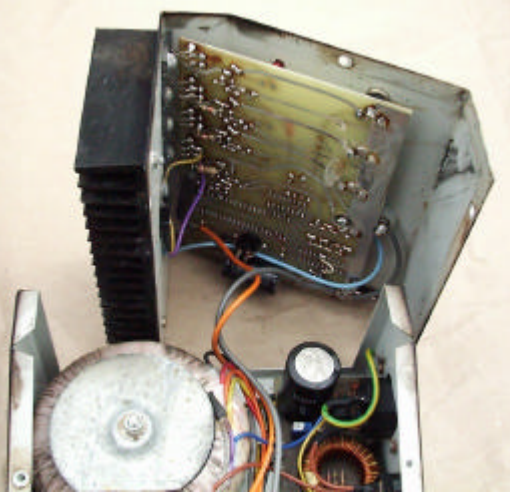

A new case and some new sockets was all that was needed to get this unit up and running after being 'cooked' for many hours in a serious house fire. They reckoned about 250 degrees plus the water damage!

It only cost him £20.00 plus delivery to have it fully working again.

Not many will do this sort of after-sales work.

And no, it wasn't the Delta 4 that started the fire!

Our thanks to Alan for permission to use these photographs

After the fire

After Repair