

ROYAL MAIL

There's a pennant fluttering gaily.
It's coloured red and white
Always at the masthead
Throughout the day and night.
You will always see that pennant
Whether on land, or sea or air
The Royal Mail insignia
Carrying on the world's affair.
To us a knock delivers
Tidings good or bad
Whilst morse the ether quivers
Words to the printers pad
So we salute that pennant
And the duty it does entail.
Many thanks to the G.P.O.
Carry on - Royal Mail

Copyright A E Hobbs 2012